ABSTRACT

Community service activities in the form of workshop materials development in accordance with the 2013 curriculum content standards for teachers of subjects in high school sociology. The training is intended to equip teachers with the material of sociology in the School Community Empowerment Curriculum includes new material in 2013 in order to be applied and practiced in sociology classes.

The target audience in the activities of the PPM are 15 high school teachers who are members of the Sociology of Sociology MGMPs Kulon Progo Regency. Training materials development in accordance with the content of the curriculum standards in 2013 was conducted using varied lecture, discussion, and frequently asked questions. The method used to deliver lectures varied concepts that are important to be understood and mastered by trainees. The material provided is the concept of community empowerment, the dynamics of community empowerment, community empowerment, community empowerment examples, and how to deliver the material to the students. While the method of question and answer and discussion to allow participants to understand the material consulted for Community Empowerment.

The availability of sufficient expertise in materials development for Community Empowerment in the Department of Sociology of Education FIS, the enthusiasm of the participants, support of school principals on the implementation of activities and funding support from the faculty is supporting the implementation of this PPM activities. The constraints faced were the teachers have not had prior knowledge about the empowerment of people, limited time for training, and the grasp of the participants varied. The benefits are the teachers can develop materials for Community Empowerment in the form of diktat or handouts to be used in the learning process in the classroom. The sustainability of this service program is consultation and discussion with team Empowerment stewards regarding the material to be delivered in high school classes. If possible, assistance for the Sociology teachers can proceed through service programs in the next budget year.
