

The Comparative Study on intercultural sensitivity among students from three study programs (Nursery, Civic Education, and Petroleum Engineering)

by Suyato

ABSTRACT

This study was aimed at describing intercultural sensitivity among students from three study programs (Nursery, Civic Education, and Petroleum Engineering).

It was a comparative study, using questionnaire as a means of collecting data. Collected data was analysed statistically, using SPSS Program.

The results indicated that there was no significant differences among students from three study programs regarding their level of intercultural sensitivity. statistically can be drawn as follows. Denial category the means of the three groups of students were 1.50; 1.75; and 1.50 respectively. Defense category: 2.00; 1.75; and 1.75 respectively. Minimization category: 2.00; 2.00; and 2.00 respectively. Acceptance category: 4.50; 4.75; and 4.75. Adaptation category: 4.80; 4.90; and 4.75 respectively. integration category: 3.50; 3.75; and 3.50.

Kata Kunci: intercultural sensitivity, student