ABSTRACT

This services activity aims to women empowerment in Sempu, Pakembinangun, Pakem, Sleman through eco-print batik manufacturing training activities. The target audience of activities is PKK mothers with a target number of 30 participants. The implementation of services activities uses lecture and practice methods. Lectures to explain knowledge about women empowerment and eco-print batik, while practice to explain the process of making eco-print batik from beginning to end. Supporting factors for the activity are support from local officials and training participants, while the inhibiting factor for the activity is the lack of knowledge about eco-print batik and limited training time. The overall service activity can be said to be quite good, seen from the success of the target number of trainees (83.3%), achievement of training objectives (70%), achievement of planned material targets (80%), and the ability of participants in mastering the material (70 %). Community service activities can increase the knowledge, abilities and participation of trainees in making eco-print batik.
