The fact shows that Indonesia is among the countries that produce the most garbage in the world. For that, community empowerment needs to be managed properly. The purpose of this PPM is to introduce the management of organic and inorganic waste to housewives. The PPM implementation lasted for two days of training. The executor of the activity is a lecturer in Psychology Master Program with 20 participants as housewives. The training activities include: listening, lectures, discussions, games, exercises, visits and simulations. PPM results show an increase in participants' understanding of organic and organic waste management and a good level of satisfaction with the training.
