

REBRANDING TRAINING TO PROMOTE BONAFIDE COMMUNITY LEARNING CENTER

by Entoh Tohani, Iis Prasetyo, Sugito

ABSTRACT

The practice of non-formal education held by Community Learning Center (CLC) effected by the Covid-19 pandemic. The presence of this pandemic has been displaced process face-to-face learning becomes the process of learning using information and computer technology (ICT). This condition encourages the transformation of CLC to be able to adapt to the development of the information age, the internet of things, and 21st-century learning. So, the community enlargement activity done to aims to equip managers to adopt new habits in information technology-based management and learning. This activity was carried out on 20 CLC managers from regions of the Yogyakarta Special Province in form of the teaching activities of using information and communication technology in CLC management and its application. The results of the managers can understand the urgency of using ICT in the management and learning carried out by CLC. It is urgent that similar activities need to be carried out intensively and sustainably in the future. The practice of non-formal education held by Community Learning Center (CLC) effected by the Covid-19 pandemic. The presence of this pandemic has been displaced process face-to-face learning becomes the process of learning using information and computer technology (ICT). This condition encourages the transformation of CLC to be able to adapt to the development of the information age, the internet of things, and 21st-century learning. So, the community enlargement activity done to aims to equip managers to adopt new habits in information technology-based management and learning. This activity was carried out on 20 CLC managers from regions of the Yogyakarta Special Province in form of the teaching activities of using information and communication technology in CLC management and its application. The results of the managers can understand the urgency of using ICT in the management and learning carried out by CLC. It is urgent that similar activities need to be carried out intensively and sustainably in the future.

Kata Kunci: response, ICT, management, learning, pandemic Covid-19