PPM Quality-based football management has been held for 2 days resulting in changes in the cognitive, affective, and especially skills of the administrators who are participants. The change in attitude that can be concluded from the participants is that there is a kind of willingness or agreement to start how to change performance in managing SSB so that it is more measurable, orderly, and thus everything can run systematically. Skills in terms of self-evaluation make administrators aware of the need for improvement so that each target or service standard can be achieved.
