

Tracer Study Program Studi Pendidikan IPS Pascasarjana UNY

by Adi Cilik Pierewan

ABSTRACT

The success of higher education is an aspect of relevance. Aspects of relevance, the college is demanded to produce graduates who are competitive and ready to take part in the construction. An understanding of the aspects of relevance can be found by doing research on the graduate tracer study. The purpose of this study is to determine the condition of graduates PIPS PPs UNY and evaluate learning activities in the PIPS UNY. Tracer study is an evaluative descriptive study tried to describe the profile of graduates and the relevance of the course material through the PIPS Prodi curriculum approach to survey results showed that educational activities and learning experience overall in PIPS PPs UNY is very in line with expectations. Overall the general condition is very appropriate KBM which reached 86.2%, while the teaching and learning aspects that need to be improved, namely regarding research participation. Regarding the condition of the facilities, PIPS PPs UNY the opinion of the graduates have facilities that support them is a library that is in accordance with their expectations. Facilities on career guidance from the data tracer is a facility that is less contributed to the development of students so the need for improved services. Besides that PIPS PPs UNY provide a learning experience that is in accordance with the expectations of graduates.

Kata Kunci: tracer study, pascasarjana