

IMPLEMENTATION OF DISPUTE SETTLEMENT THROUGH STATE ADMINISTRATIVE JUSTICE IN ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION

by Marzuki, Eny Kusdarini, Jihan Wulandari, Inayah Af'idatul Rochman.

ABSTRACT

This study aims to describe and analyze the implementation of dispute resolution through the State Administrative Court in environmental protection, the existing obstacles, and the efforts that have been taken to overcome these obstacles. This research is included in social humanities research, especially in the field of law with a case study approach. Data collection through documentation and interview techniques. Determination of research subjects was carried out using a purposive technique with the research subjects of Yogyakarta State Administrative Court Judges and officials in the DIY Regional Government who took care of environmental problems

The expected results of the research are mandatory outputs, namely: (1) Scopus indexed journal articles and (2) international seminar proceedings articles that describe the implementation of dispute resolution through state administrative courts in the state in environmental protection, the obstacles that occur, and the efforts that have been made. taken to overcome obstacles. Additional outputs in the form of book chapters and IPR from books which contain chapters from research results.

Kata Kunci: Implementation, dispute resolution, State Administrative Court, environmental protection.