ABSTRACT

This community service program aims to train women in Kwagon Village in producing accessories using batik waste as the main material. Knowledge and motivation of entrepreneurs was also emphasized in this program. Therefore, women in Kwagon Village have an alternative to create a business. Twelve women joined in this training as active participants. This program has been held on May 12th, 2018 in Kwagon Village.

This community service program has already been held successfully based on three indicators: 1) was attended by 12 women (the target is 20-25 women, or about 60% attendance); 2) all participants followed the training from beginning until the end of training; and there is a participant that has intention to create a small business utilizing her knowledge that they got from this women empowerment program.
