by Dr. Dyah Kumalasari, M.Pd

ABSTRACT

The course of Global Perspective is a compulsory course of study in the Education Studies Program History of FIS UNY. This course aims to make students able to see and think from the point of interest and global perspective to a problem, event, or activity around it. Based on the global understanding and insight, the students hope to think global and act locally (think globally, act locally) when faced with a problem. This study aims to actualize the value of character education based on local wisdom of Java (Yogyakarta) community.

The method used in this research is descriptive qualitative research. With this research is expected to reveal various qualitative information with thorough and meaningful analyzes. While the research strategy is to use hermeneutic approach with content analysis type or content analysis. Qualitative research methods relevant to reveal research literature study that emphasizes on the meaning of meaningfulness philosophically, theoretically, and culture that is always associated with the value system. Actualization of the value of character education based on local wisdom in the course of global perspective is done in order to equip students with noble values ??of the nation's culture to face the swift currents of globalization. Javanese ethical values ??such as the principle of harmony and honor principles are presented as a study material that is an important part in discussing social changes and lifestyles of society in the global era. Included in this study is the study of the typical local wisdom of the people around Yogyakarta. The student's positive response indicates that the cultural values ??of our ancestral heritage still allow us to lift and revive in order to fortify the young generation today from the negative effects of global culture, since this course presents many insights into the global culture that leads to pop culture, . Giving awareness to students about real-world phenomena behind the meaning of words from globalization, including discussing many things about current global issues, will be more effective when done with the inculcation of character education based on local wisdom.
