ABSTRACT

However, the community is more faced with the problems of the Indonesian nation related to poor moral leaders, distrust in preserving local and national cultures, depleting natural resources and decreasing quality of human resources. This kind of phenomenon makes the Indonesian people themselves not proud of their nation, even though other countries are so "jealous" of Indonesia. The character crisis experienced by the Indonesian nation will of course have a broad impact on all circles. An increasingly modern era with the increase in facilities to support life such as technology, transportation, public services and access to education actually makes people increasingly disobeying noble values, politeness and character.
