ABSTRACT

Changes in curriculum at all learning and school levels will always be accompanied by changes in the underlying paradigm and philosophy. Similarly, in learning French in high school. This will certainly provide its own challenges for French teachers in learning texts, developing students' French language skills, as well as instilling values based on local wisdom, as mandated by both the 2013 Curriculum and the MBKM curriculum as the national curriculum. The development of high school French textbooks based on local wisdom is based on the understanding that language learning is not only learning vocabulary and grammar, but also understanding local culture and wisdom in Indonesia. Language learning that is contextual and relevant to local culture can increase students' motivation in learning and help them understand foreign languages and cultures better. In addition, local wisdom also has a very important value in building national identity and maintaining cultural diversity in Indonesia. By incorporating local wisdom in foreign language learning, students will be able to more easily recognize, appreciate, and preserve Indonesian culture.

Researchers use Research and Development (R&D) research approach, consisting of three stages, namely: (1) Preliminary Study, (2) Model Planning and Development and (3) Model Validation Respondents in this study are students and French teachers at the high school level. A total of 30 survey respondents were taken from the population of high school teachers who are members of MGMP.

The topic of the French book material from the survey results revolves around a) Daily life, b) New things, c) Hobbies, and d) Culture. The language of instruction in explanations and practice instructions that are most in demand is Indonesian and simple French. The book has pictures, and links to learning videos that include various types of language games in deepening exercises that are done in groups (quizzes, crosswords, guess pictures, etc.). Writing exercises are facilitated with descriptions of images and series of images. Practice speaking by giving themes of discussion and dialogue.
