

Active and Creative Learning by Utilizing Literary Text for Students in High Schools / Vocational Schools in Central Java in the Framework of PPM German Language Education Department FBS UNY

by Yati Sugiarti, Pratomo Widodo, Akbar K. Setiawan

ABSTRACT

The purpose of the Community Service (PPM) activity is to socialize the FBS UNY German Language Education Department to high school and vocational high school students in Central Java through active and creative learning by utilizing literary texts. The activity is expected to increase the motivation of students to learn German and they can get to know the German Language Education Department, FBS UNY.

The activities carried out in the PPM consisted of the introduction of the German Language Education Department, FBS UNY, and introducing literary texts to students. In addition, students are invited to actively create their own literary works at the simplest level.

The results obtained through the PPM activities are (1) PPM participants can get to know the FBS UNY German Language Education Department up close, and (2) active and creative learning by utilizing literary texts can increase the motivation of PPM participants to learn German. (3) There is good interaction between students and high school students at the time of the activity.

Kata Kunci: Keywords: Socialization of the German Language Education Department FBS UNY, active and creative learning, literary text.