

TRAINING PREPARATION OF TEACHING MATERIALS DURING COVID-19 PANDEMIC FOR MIDDLE SCHOOL IPS TEACHERS

by Supardi, Happri Novriza Setya Dhewantoro, Sudrajat, Primanisa Inayati Azizah, Diah Nadiatul Jannah, Diah Retno Hapsari

ABSTRACT

In current pandemic conditions, direct teacher training is a necessity. That's why this training was designed offline and online to provide provisions to teachers in developing learning resources during a pandemic. The pandemic has made it difficult for social studies teachers to develop meaningful learning for students. Even though pandemic will end, this ability still plays a big role in helping teachers develop their duties and responsibilities. Training on preparing teaching materials during covid-19 pandemic for social studies teachers at junior high schools in Wonogiri Regency. Activity method chosen for implementation teaching materials training activities during covid-19 pandemic for SMP social studies teachers for Wonogiri Regency social studies teachers, namely: lectures, question and answer (via online and offline), hands-on practice and mentoring. Community service activities were carried out offline for 2 times, together with service team visiting school where training was held, namely Selogiri 1 Junior high School, Regency. The meeting continued online for 3 times for practical activities and assistance in developing teaching materials. Results of activities with this training can increase learning innovation can increase students' interest in learning, improve quality of learning through training in teaching materials, develop science and renewable technology and can improve previous learning in a better direction. Teachers are very enthusiastic about participating in this activity both offline and online, teachers can also arrange teaching materials during the covid-19 pandemic for social studies teachers for junior high schools as expected.

Kata Kunci: Training, Teaching Materials, IPS