ABSTRACT

This community service activity was aimed to teachers of SDIT Luqman Al Hakim Sleman. The objective was to increase the motivation and skills of the teachers in writing papers both scientific articles and enrichment books for the elementary school level. The method used in this PPM activity was a workshop on writing scientific papers. After the workshop, assistance was also provided for teachers so that they could develop the ability to make further scientific papers. The results of PPM activities showed that all participants can follow the entire training process and the activities designed were carried out well. The target of delivering training materials was also achieved because the material could be delivered entirely. Participants had high enthusiasm in participating in workshop activities as well as trying to practice writing scientific papers and enrichment books. Mastery of the competencies of the training participants was evaluated through the practice of writing scientific articles and enrichment books conducted by participants.
