

Classroom Action Research (CAR) Training for German Teachers National level

by Isti Haryati, Sudarmaji, Retno Endah S.M., Iman Santoso, Sri Megawati, Aditya Rikfanto

ABSTRACT

Community Service (PPM), carried out by the PPM Team of the Department of German Language Education FBS-UNY, aims to accompany German teachers who are members of the Indonesian German Language Teachers Association (IGBJI) to master knowledge about Classroom Action Research and be able to overcome the problems they face and improve the quality of language learning. German in schools through Classroom Action Research.

This Community Service (PPM) activity is realized in the form of a 32-hour workshop which is divided into 3 meeting sessions. Session I contains an explanation of the theories and methods of Classroom Action Research. Session II contains mentoring activities to find research ideas, and Session III contains presentations of research proposals from selected participants. This training activity is carried out entirely online using the Zoom application.

Community Service (PPM) Activities in the form of Classroom Action Research training can be carried out properly and obtain results as planned. The attendance rate of registered participants is in the good category. Average attendance of 50 people per session (69.4%) of the total 72 registrants. Participation of participants in the discussion is also good. At the end of the activity, 23 Classroom Action Research proposals were produced. Thus, German teachers are able to apply the results of this activity by observing the state of learning German in their respective schools and taking scientific steps to carry out action research.

Kata Kunci: Training, classroom action research, German teacher