This PPM activity aims to improve the knowledge and skills of teachers of SMK Negeri 1 Pundong in compiling proposals and carrying out Classroom Action Research through training in schools. Through research habituation in the classroom, it is hoped that teachers will be more skilled in practicing reflection on teaching in the classroom, so that learning is obtained from time to time.

The method used in community service activities is the lecture method and assignments. Lecture method to convey vocational learning problems in SMK, preparation of PTK proposals, implementation of CAR, reflection on the key learning success of teacher CPD, and CAR reports. Meanwhile, the assignment method is to provide training opportunities for participants to practice starting from finding problems in the learning process that can be solved through CAR, to designing the CAR proposal.

The results of the training showed that there was an increase in the knowledge and skills of the teachers of SMK Negeri 1 Pundong in understanding classroom action research. Training has high effectiveness and efficiency because teachers do need classroom action research training materials. This is indicated by the number of participants according to the planned target of 25 participants.
