

ELIPSIS IN GERMAN AND THEIR EQUIVALENCES IN INDONESIAN

by Sulis Triyono, Pratomo Widodo, Sri Megawati

ABSTRACT

Each language has its own rules that differ between one language and another language. This study aims to describe the use of ellipsis in German and its realization in Indonesian.

The research method is descriptive qualitative. The data is in the form of lingual units containing German ellipsis contained in German and Indonesian books published by DAAD beginning in 2015 until 2017. The analysis uses the method of sharing with the changing technique and the translational equivalent method that is the determining tool outside the language in question. The results of this study are expected to be an entry point to be published in reputable international journals. This research is a continuation of previous research in 2018 which was funded by the Research Group Project in the allocation of funds from the Faculty of Language and Arts, Yogyakarta State University.
