

Financial Literacy Program To Improve Financial Skills and Financial Knowledge for School Teenagers

by Naning Margasari, Wardana, Musaroh, Andreas M. Kuncoro dan Mahendra R.G.G.P

ABSTRACT

Community Service Activities with the theme of Financial Literacy Counseling To Improve Financial Skills and Financial Knowledge for school Teenagers, held at SMA N 6 Yogyakarta, aimed to provide insights about financial literacy to teenagers, especially high school students. Community Service Activities that aim to provide knowledge about financial products and types of investment in the community were expected by participants to have good financial planning in the future; they would not get caught up in the wrong investments and fraudulent financial products.

This activity was carried out by lecturing, audio-visual and question-and-answer questions regarding financial literacy for young teenagers. The materials were given around financial planning in order to reach the future and the types or investment products that offered through many internet networks. Participants who succeeded in starting to open a link and connect with one of the investment offered on the internet at the time, received a reward by the PPM Team. The participants were very active in the discussion; it was to make the counseling atmosphere very attractive and enjoyable.

The results of this activity were very significant especially in providing good financial planning, recognizing the types of investments that were legal and overseen by the Financial Services Authority (OJK). All participants were very satisfied with this activity; this was shown by the evaluation results which showed that this community service activity was very useful and in the future can be continued at the same time and at different opportunities.

Kata Kunci: Financial knowledge, financial skill, school teenagers, literacy