ABSTRACT

Increasing Community Capabilities Based on the Ecoprint Pounding Technique Training Method for Family Economic Empowerment in Kasongan Village. The activity takes the form of training targeting PKK mothers as a form of empowerment for the community. Ecoprint pounding technique is the process of adding motifs to fabric using natural materials and natural dyes in the form of leaves, as well as adding creativity to the coloring process by tie dyeing. The background to this training is driven by the use of natural resources, in the form of leaves which are a material for making ecoprints in Kasongan Village which are still abundant. This training aims to increase capability through the process of increasing individual and group skills to prepare for business now and in the future. The implementation process involves applying lecture and direct practice methods in which material about ecoprint is presented and emphasis is placed on the practice of making it in detail. The results obtained after this training participants can make ecoprints independently and according to their respective creativity. The hope is for the idea of opening a business as a form of improving the family economy.
